The Year 2007 was an Historic One at UVSC for Many Reasons.

First and foremost, the State Legislature approved the College’s request to be given university status. The community is fortunate to have a public institution of higher education of the caliber of UVSC to educate its young people. As of July 1, 2008, in addition to excellent baccalaureate degrees, the College will begin offering select master degrees.

As a group of community volunteers and supporters of UVSC, the Foundation is dedicated to the success of the College. From our interaction with the institution, we assure you that UVSC is committed to providing a quality education. The College administration, faculty and staff are dedicated individuals to whom you can entrust the education of your children.

I hope you enjoy this annual report of the activities of the Foundation and the Office of Institutional Advancement. 2008 will be another exciting year for the College. Please join us in the festivities throughout the year.

Sincerely,

Paul Clyde

UVSC FOUNDATION ENDOwed SCHolARSHIP

The Foundation endowed the UVSC Foundation Endowed Scholarship in 2006. In fall 2007, the first awards were made to Chad Benson and Jamie Finlinson who reported to the Foundation at the Board luncheon in February 2008.

Chad, one of UVSC’s many non-traditional students, returned to UVSC to study Technology Management. He expects to graduate in spring of 2009.

Jamie, a senior in the Elementary Education program, is student teaching and preparing to graduate this spring.

ONE MILLION IN PRIVATE SCHOLARSHIP FUNDING

More than $1 million was awarded in fall 2007 through 164 private scholarships funds. This is a dramatic increase from years past and an exciting milestone for our institution. Thanks to the generosity of our donors and commitment of the UVSC Foundation, private scholarship funding continues to rise to meet the demand of our growing student body.

“We are so grateful to those who have established a scholarship fund. These scholarships help students achieve their educational objectives and make a significant difference in students’ lives, today and into the future,” said Nancy Smith, Director of Donor Relations and Private Scholarships.

Although the increase in private scholarship funds makes an impact on educational opportunities, this one-million dollar landmark is only a fraction of the amount needed to accommodate the growing student body. With university status now official, the need for privately funded scholarships continues to grow.
DISTINGUISHED FACULTY AWARDS

As part of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the UVSC Foundation, the Board established the UVSC Foundation Distinguished Faculty Award in 2006 to honor fine faculty members with exceptional credentials, a love of teaching and a desire to serve the educational needs of students and the community. This award is given annually to a faculty member who has a distinguished career in his or her field of study and an exemplary record of teaching and service.

2006 JAMES G. HARRIS, PH.D.
2007 NORMA GOULD, PH.D.

THE EXCEPTIONAL MERIT GRANT PROGRAM FOR FACULTY AND STAFF

In 1997, the UVSC Foundation Board of Directors established a grant program for faculty and staff to show their gratitude to the campus community for the major role they play in the success of Utah Valley State College. The Foundation has awarded more than $377,000 to assist 155 projects with up to $5,000 each. Many worthy projects have been funded so far including:

- Certification and workshops for qualified interpreters for the Deaf
- Lecture series: Great Thinkers of the Twentieth Century
- UVSC Wee Care Center aids students needing child care while pursuing their education
- School of Science and Health’s Wetlands Natural Study Area
- Providing much-needed defibrillators for the athletic department
FINANCIAL REPORT

THE YEAR 2007 WAS ONE TO REMEMBER AT UTAH VALLEY STATE COLLEGE. With the anticipation of becoming Utah Valley University July 1, 2008, foremost in the hearts and minds of community members and students, the Foundation experienced a record-breaking year for gifts and pledges, with more than $35 million pledged.

There are still many naming opportunities available including a significant need for scholarships and funds to support worthy projects that will help UVU fulfill its mission to provide a quality education to our students.

The Foundation continues to carefully monitor and benchmark investments against national averages and peer groups in an effort to protect investments while producing above average earnings. The average rate of return for all Foundation investments in 2007 was 8.9 percent.

The UVSC Foundation’s fiscal audited report ending June 30, 2007 may be viewed online, or copies of audited financial statements are available upon request by contacting (801) 863-8568.

A SEASON OF GROWTH

JULY 1, 2008 WILL BE A WATERSHED DAY FOR UTAH VALLEY STATE COLLEGE AND THE COMMUNITY IT SERVES.

It is the day that Utah Valley State College officially makes the transition to Utah Valley University, marking a new era in the history of the institution and bringing exciting changes to the community.

Perhaps the most outward indication of approaching university status is the addition of a beautiful five-story library being built east of the Liberal Arts Building at UVSC’s Orem campus. UVU’s new library will officially open the same day that UVSC becomes UVU.

A PLACE OF LEARNING AND ENGAGEMENT

The Library has been connected with UVSC’s transition to a university since the beginning; in fact, an updated and improved facility was one of the key points in the plan for university status. “A high-quality library is key to any great institution,” said Michael Freeman, director of UVSC’s library.

The lead designer for the project is Jacob Alspector, an architect from New York, who has designed several award-winning projects, including the Mid-Manhattan and Science, Industry and Business Libraries of the NY Public Library. Cooper, Roberts, Simonsen and Associates (CRSA), a local architecture firm whose projects include the Utah State Archives Building and complete restoration of the Brigham City Tabernacle, are providing additional design help. Construction on the library is being carried out by Utah’s largest nationally-ranked contractor, Layton Construction.

The Library is approximately 190,000 square feet, which is six times the size of the current library located in the Losee Center. It features four teaching classrooms, four seminar rooms, three large computer labs and 33 group study rooms, in comparison to the current library’s four group study rooms. The new facility has a larger accessibility lab and more room for special collections, and will house UVSC’s Writing Center and a new, larger Copy Center. The library also contains a large 150-person auditorium on the south end, which will provide space for campus speakers and meetings.

With technological advances, such as having twice the number of computers available for students and a new fiber optic cable network, the Library is moving with current trends in technology, incorporating it into classical education to create the best atmosphere possible for those who come to learn at UVU.

In addition to library services, the new building will provide much-needed space for other departments on UVSC’s growing campus. It will house the Media Services Department and UVSC’s Information Technology Department (IT). Thanks to the available space in the new building, all of UVSC’s campus servers will be located in one building, which is more convenient and efficient, and will allow the IT Department to more easily upgrade the campus network. UVSC’s Integrated Studies program will be moved from its current location in the Liberal Arts building to the new library as well.
While there are a lot of quiet spaces designed for students to study individually, the library is also designed to serve as a meeting place where students, faculty, staff, and members of the community can engage with one another. There is a café located on the first floor, which lends to a social, coffee-shop atmosphere that encourages both creative and scholarly interaction.

The Library is not only exciting for what is contained within its walls, however. Equally remarkable is the building itself. The building is the first state building to be built under new state energy efficiency regulations. The windows are constructed of energy-efficient glass, and the lighting and heating systems are likewise efficient. In keeping with the rest of those who are Wolverines at heart, the architects and construction company has been “thinking green” in every aspect of the building.

A SOLID FOUNDATION

The state-of-the-art Library is evidence of how far UVSC has come since its first days as Central Utah Vocational School. The growth of the institution is mirrored in the growth of the institutional library, growing and developing as the school likewise grew from name to name, status to status, and campus to campus.

When the first library opened at CUVS in 1941, it was located in the administration office at the Fairgrounds Campus in Provo. The librarian was Sylvia Fetterly Anderson and the complete library, which consisted of less than 50 volumes, was located on a shelf above Anderson’s desk.

Grace Mayhew was the first librarian for the Provo Campus, which opened in 1954. The library was housed in the multi-purpose building and shared space with the school bookstore, which Mayhew also supervised. During Mayhew’s tenure as librarian, the library increased from less than one hundred books to several hundred volumes.

In 1969, when the institution was known as Utah Technical College, George Tanner was appointed as the second school librarian. Tanner was president of the Utah Librarian’s Association from 1974-75 and was the founding chairman of the Theatre Department at UVSC.
in addition to his impactful role as librarian. He worked with instructors in each department, encouraging them to purchase books and periodicals to both enrich their programs and add to the institution’s growing library. Because of his efforts, the library grew from a few hundred books to more than 20,000 volumes.

In 1975, when the institution was known as Utah Technical College, an additional building was added to the institution’s Orem campus, which included space for the Learning Enrichment Center, which houses the current UVSC Library. The building was designed by architect Frank Ferguson and was first used in 1978.

Carrol Reid was appointed dean of Learning Resources and Services and library director at UVSC in 1980. The number of books increased dramatically while Reid served as director of the library.

UVSC’s current Library Director, Mike Freeman, was appointed to that position in 1995, and will continue in that capacity as the UVU library is moved to the new building.

A BRILLIANT FUTURE

The new Library is only one of the exciting changes that happened recently at UVSC. In addition to receiving a unanimous vote for university status and $8 million of new funding from Utah Legislature, UVSC also experienced a record-breaking year in donations from the institution’s loyal supporters. In 2007, friends of the institution pledged an astounding $35 million, which will be used to support various programs, including the new Woodbury School of Business and the Noorda Regional Theatre Center for Children and Youth.

In addition to monetary success, UVSC is further developing its role in the community of Utah Valley. President William A. Sederburg introduced the Communities of Engaged Learners program, which will allow the institution to increase its interaction, visibility and influence within the community.

And this is only the beginning.

“As wonderful as 2007 was for UVSC, the future is even brighter,” remarked Val Hale, vice president of advancement at UVSC. “UVSC will continue to grow in size and influence in the region. The addition of a state-of-the-art library and enhanced academic programs will make the future UVU a key player in higher education in the state from now on.”

PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

IT IS AN EXCITING TIME TO BE AT UTAH VALLEY STATE COLLEGE AS WE TRANSITION TO UTAH VALLEY UNIVERSITY ON JULY 1, 2008.

The transition to university status enables us to strengthen our efforts on our core mission: providing a quality education and serving the educational and economic needs of the region.

In connection with university status, the new library with 190,000 square feet—larger than the McKay Events Center—will be a wonderful addition to the campus and provide students and faculty with the necessary resources needed to be engaged in university work. Our Center for Engaged Learning, established in Summer 2007, will continue to flourish and provide many opportunities for the university and the community to work together in fulfilling community needs. We have developed 14 new baccalaureate programs over the past two years, and will continue to add new programs that make sense for the university and region we serve.

As we build new programs to meet these regional needs, we will continue to stress our role in providing Career and Technical Education (CTE). Currently, we are the second largest provider of CTE in the state, educating 22 percent of all CTE students. As we look to the future we’ll remember our past.

Thank you for all that you have done to bring us to this point. Our success is due in many respects to the generosity of our donors and service rendered from the UVSC Foundation. I hope you will continue to help us provide quality education for our children and grandchildren as we become Utah Valley University.

Sincerely,

William A. Sederburg
