

William Clark

William Clark is a junior studying global politics at Utah Valley University. As a member of the Global Student Leadership Council, William works to promote the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals on campus and assists in planning and preparing for the visits of foreign dignitaries to Utah Valley University. As a native of Utah, William recognizes the importance of advocating for sustainable mountain development on a global level and believes that Utah can serve as a model for other mountain communities. In his free time, William enjoys running, skiing, and visiting Utah's national parks. Upon graduation, William hopes to attend law school.
