

Braden Birbara

Braden was born in New York City and grew up in both the New York and Connecticut area, moving to Orem, Utah in 2022 and attended Utah Valley University for two years. Currently he is enrolled at Fordham University in New York City studying philosophy. Braden is currently researching language in political practice with a particular interest in Wittgensteinian use of language in politics and how this applies in the democratic process. He is in the process of applying to law school and hopes to have a career in international law.