

Jacob Burnthorn

Jacob Burnthorn was born in Texas to two public educators and was active in the Boy Scouts throughout his youth. He worked full-time to pay for his associate degree at LoneStar College in Houston. Later, Jacob moved to Utah to pursue higher education. Since moving to Utah, he has grown to love the area and mountain views. He is working towards a degree in Political Science, with a minor in National Security Studies. While in Utah, Jacob joined the Utah Army National Guard, a part of the United States military.

It has been an enlightening experience learning more about international relations and institutions during his time at Utah Valley University. His professors have shown great passion and expertise in their fields of study. Thanks to them, Jacob is eager to conclude his studies and move into a professional environment.
