

Savannah Niemann

Savannah was born and raised in California and is now a junior at Utah Valley University. She transferred to UVU after a year and a half at a community college in California. She is a student in the Earth Science department and pursuing a degree in Environmental Studies and a minor in Environmental Science and Management. She is passionate about alleviating climate change, marine conservation, and environmental justice. She is involved in the Utah International Mountain Forum and the Sustainability Community at UVU. Savannah loves nature, her family, and helping others. Hoping to make a positive impact on the world, she is interested in becoming an Environmental Manager and creating a future of conservation, sustainability, and equality.
