

LOUYOKO NIANZA

Louyoko Nianza, is a Political science Student at Utah Valley University (UVU), He was born in the Republic of Congo, is an author, educational entrepreneur, and community leader, A President of the Congolese Community of Utah and an author of Go Back to Africa, a work on diasporic responsibility and the strategic reconstruction of the continent. Louyoko Nianza works as a student and Intern Associated at Gary R Herbert Institute for Public Policy.

He founded the Smart-Africanism NGO and the SLSA (Seminar on African Leadership and Self-Esteem), platforms dedicated to ethical leadership, intellectual development, and structured action for Africa. As an educational entrepreneur, he is the CEO of Bamaeribole School, aiming to promote academic excellence and the formation of a competent, disciplined youth aware of contemporary challenges.

On the international stage, he has participated in United Nations work as a member and delegate to the Utah International Mountain Forum during the 68th and 69th sessions of the UN Women Commission on the Status of Women (CSW68–69), contributing to discussions on sustainable development and empowerment. Based in the United States, he is furthering his studies in international relations, diplomacy and political science. As a Community actor in Utah, he works to strengthen institutional structures and diasporic networks, embodying committed African intellectual leadership.