Sheri Dew, internationally recognized author and speaker, will provide an engaging presentation on the importance of leadership for all women. She truly believes that women are “born to lead.” She will discuss how each of us needs to work constantly at developing our capacity to lead, as leadership is needed everywhere. She believes that if women are going to do what they came here to do, they are going to have to learn how to lead and stand up for what they believe. She will also provide recommendations on how we can develop these skills and abilities and help others do the same. Sheri is well-known as a speaker for her engaging stories, forthright advice, and her passion around the potential of girls and women in Utah and around the world. Come, listen, learn, and add your voice to this important conversation! This event is open to all women 14 years of age or older and all those who influence girls and women (this includes men too).
