Opportunities and Challenges for Women in Leadership: Learning from New Zealand

We are delighted to have Professor Sarah Leberman join us from New Zealand. You are invited to join us for this informative seminar!

September 9, 2014
3:30-4:30 p.m.
SC 206A
Light refreshments will be served.

Professor Sarah Leberman
Head of School, School of Management, Massey University, New Zealand

Sarah has a PhD in Management, an MA (Applied) in Recreation Administration from Victoria University in Wellington, and an MA in Geography from Cambridge University in England. Her current research interests are in the areas of women and leadership in sport and academia, as well as the transfer of learning, and in particular the processes and factors which facilitate this. Her most recent research publications have focused on mothers in sport leadership roles, and as elite athletes. She was a Fulbright Senior Scholar in 2008, which she tenured at the Tucker Centre for Research on Girls and Women in Sport, at the University of Minnesota.

Sarah started at Massey University as a Recreation Officer and moved on to be Manager of the Recreation Centre, during which time the sport management and coaching qualifications at Massey were developed. From 1995-1997, she worked at Victoria University in Wellington before returning to Massey as an academic in the Department of Management. Her latest challenge at work is being the Head of School covering three campuses and with about 70 staff.

She has served on numerous committees within the University including Academic Board and was Chair of the Massey University Blues Committee and Chair of the Massey University Doctoral Research Committee. She was a member of the New Zealand Olympic Committee, Women in Sport Group and the Manager of the Women’s Junior Black Sticks. She has been a board member of Volleyball New Zealand, Western Netball, and Hockey Manawatu. Sarah is currently the Chair of the NZWiL Steering Group and has been involved in the development of the programme from its inception in 2007.

She is married to Brett and they have a daughter Phoebe (11). They enjoy spending time at the beach boogie boarding and travelling. Photography is her creative outlet, and she is learning to surf. Sarah gained her black belt in Tae Kwon Do at the end of 2013.

We are delighted to have Professor Sarah Leberman join us from New Zealand. You are invited to join us for this informative seminar!

September 9, 2014
3:30-4:30 p.m.
SC 206A
Light refreshments will be served.

Professor Sarah Leberman
Head of School, School of Management, Massey University, New Zealand

Sarah has a PhD in Management, an MA (Applied) in Recreation Administration from Victoria University in Wellington, and an MA in Geography from Cambridge University in England. Her current research interests are in the areas of women and leadership in sport and academia, as well as the transfer of learning, and in particular the processes and factors which facilitate this. Her most recent research publications have focused on mothers in sport leadership roles, and as elite athletes. She was a Fulbright Senior Scholar in 2008, which she tenured at the Tucker Centre for Research on Girls and Women in Sport, at the University of Minnesota.

Sarah started at Massey University as a Recreation Officer and moved on to be Manager of the Recreation Centre, during which time the sport management and coaching qualifications at Massey were developed. From 1995-1997, she worked at Victoria University in Wellington before returning to Massey as an academic in the Department of Management. Her latest challenge at work is being the Head of School covering three campuses and with about 70 staff.

She has served on numerous committees within the University including Academic Board and was Chair of the Massey University Blues Committee and Chair of the Massey University Doctoral Research Committee. She was a member of the New Zealand Olympic Committee, Women in Sport Group and the Manager of the Women’s Junior Black Sticks. She has been a board member of Volleyball New Zealand, Western Netball, and Hockey Manawatu. Sarah is currently the Chair of the NZWiL Steering Group and has been involved in the development of the programme from its inception in 2007.

She is married to Brett and they have a daughter Phoebe (11). They enjoy spending time at the beach boogie boarding and travelling. Photography is her creative outlet, and she is learning to surf. Sarah gained her black belt in Tae Kwon Do at the end of 2013.