OCCUPATIONAL SEGREGATION
Utah is one of the more highly segregated states in the U.S. in terms of women's employment. The jobs that women work at are among the lowest paying in the state. Additionally, Utah men are much more likely to be concentrated in higher paying jobs. Utah women are likely to work in just two occupational groups: Service Occupations and Healthcare Support. These also pay lower than average state wages. However, Utah men are much more likely to work in higher paying jobs.

WHAT CAN WE DO?
Various stakeholders can do their part to support Utah women in the labor force.
- Teach young women to plan for education and careers.
- Advance workplace programs for women.
- Support childcare and family leave policies.
- Build pathways for women in higher paying industries.
- Advance workplace programs for women.
- Support childcare and family leave policies.
- Build pathways for women in higher paying industries.

WHAT DO WE GET?
Various stakeholders can do their part to support Utah women in the labor force.
- Teach young women to plan for education and careers.
- Advance workplace programs for women.
- Support childcare and family leave policies.
- Build pathways for women in higher paying industries.
- Advance workplace programs for women.
- Support childcare and family leave policies.
- Build pathways for women in higher paying industries.